

Ravi Agarwal

Tuesday April 11

environmental activist
photographer

High Tech Leaps, Forsaken Lives: Politics and Policies of E-Waste Management

11:00 am - Arjona 119 those interested in attending this lecture, contact Prakash Kashwan at prakash.kashwan@uconn.edu

Photography & Environmental Activism

4:00 pm - Room 101, Department of Art & Art History

Ravi Agarwal is a photographer, writer, curator and environmental activist based in New Delhi, India. His interdisciplinary work traverses questions of the self, politics, urbanism and the environment. He has been included in significant exhibitions throughout the world including Documenta XI, The Venice Biennale, Sarjah Biennale, Kochi Muziris Biennale, Serpentine Gallery, London and The William Benton Museum of Art at UConn where his work is in the permanent collection. He is represented by Gallery Espace in New Delhi and The Guild Gallery in Mumbai.

Co-sponsored by The University of Connecticut Department of Art & Art History, Asian & Asian American Studies and India Studies. For more information contact Kathryn Myers at kathryn.myers@uconn.edu